

It is outrageous that the FCC would even consider allowing more consolidation of ownership. Too few companies already own more and more broadcast sources. The broadcast band is owned by the public and the FCC is charged with its stewardship. Allowing consolidation works against the public - not for the public.

As fewer and fewer corporations control more and more sources of news, for example, different viewpoints and basic checks and balances are eliminated. It is no coincidence that this issue is not being covered in the news. The corporations that own the media do not want the public to know that they are poised to take even more control over it. Please stand up for the public interest you are charged to protect. Do not allow these changes.

Thank you, C.S., Virginia Beach, Virginia